Arrive Rome – 10AM Departure to Umbria

(You must be in Rome on the AM of this day. Your flight schedule might require the night of April 27th in Rome)

Today is the official beginning of the tour. We will meet up as a group at the Rome Airport and begin our adventure. *Please see end of this itinerary for specifics and for a description of a pre-trip extension in Rome. We depart the bustle of the airport bound for the timeless and dramatic beauty of Umbria, known as Italy's "unsung jewel and "Green Heart." It is a mosaic of castle-topped hill towns, wildflowers, wheat fields, olive groves and vineyards all with the backdrop of the snow-covered Apennines in the distance. Because it is Italy's only region that does not have the sea or another country as a border, Umbria has retained many old-world traditions. Our destination is Montefalco, known as "the Balcony of Umbria." Its lofty position with incredible views over the fertile land below, makes the village a true gem in this region. The 12th century town is entered through five gates.

Our accommodations for the next two nights are at Villa Zuccari, a large country house whose oldest wing dates back to the 1800's. The villa is surrounded by centuries-old trees and lush grounds extending over 40,000 square meters. Cypress-lined paths, a forest and rare species of flora make this a paradise. We enjoy dinner as a group tonight in the Villa's dining room. Overnight at Villa Zuccari. (D)

Black Truffle Hunting in the Wild Forest

Today we have a real treat with a unique day in the heart of Umbria immersed in its black truffle culture! Our adventure starts in the mountain village of Pettino. We will be the guests of a local family on their farm where they have been hunting truffles for generations.

With expert truffle hunters, we comb the truffle-rich forests and pastures following his highly trained dogs. When we have enough truffles for lunch, we'll stop with a panoramic view and have our first taste of a freshly dug truffle and Prosecco. Often, the farm's shepherd and flock of sheep join in for company and a drink.

When we return to the village, we discover some of the secrets of the family's culinary tradition. In their pasta room, we can learn to make the traditional fresh pasta of the village. All the while, we enjoy an assortment of home-made specialties such as truffle bruschetta and their own pecorino cheese – all served with local wine, of course. Finally, we'll sit down to a delicious traditional Umbrian mountain lunch. Some of their family and friends from the village join us for this totally authentic meal. In the late afternoon, we return to our palazzo. Overnight at Villa Zuccari. (B,L)

Ceramics of Deruta and the Linen and Wines of Montefalco

Today we travel north to Deruta, one of the most famous centers for distinctive and iconic ceramics in Italy. Deruta is considered one of the most beautiful villages in the country. There are several different styles of this pottery whose production began between 1440 and early 16th century. The best examples of these ceramics are still produced in Deruta. There are many shops where the production is carried out as a cottage industry. Unbaked clay plates, bowls and other objects are baked in ovens, then hand-painted and brought back to the ovens for glazing in the original tradition of yore. You can enjoy lunch on your own in this interesting village before we continue north.

Before we depart Montefalco, we'll delve into the strong tradition of woven linen here dating back at least eight centuries. In the 19th century, a French weaver invented a very special loom that allowed the weaver to create traditional and complex patterns. The weaving of linen is still a vibrant part of Italian weaving thanks to the Pardi family and thriving with two outlets in town which we will visit. The weaving mill was established by three brothers and is now run by 2nd and 3rd generation family members.

Montefalco is also well known for its sagrantino wines which date back to the 16th century when it was served as a communion wine. Today it is considered one of Italy's great wines comparable to Barolo or Brunello at half the price. Fortunately, we will have a chance to taste this not-so-well known wine indigenous to the region while we are here.

Our destination this evening is Castello Monterone, a fairytale 13th century castle just outside Perugia restored as a luxury boutique hotel. It has a rich history interwoven with the Knight's Templar as it was believed to be a guard tower for the Bevignate Templar church. The castle boasts 13th century frescoes, medieval cloisters, Roman columns and Etruscan artifacts. Each room is unique and enchanting. We will stay here for two nights. Tonight, we dine as a group in the castle's restaurant. Overnight at Castello Monterone. (B,D)

Hand-Weaving History in Perugia and Ancient Assisi

This morning we will head to Perugia, the capital of Umbria. This charming city is well known for its ancient textiles. Here we will have a special visit to the Giuditto Brozzetti Weaving and Workshop (Il Museo-Laboratorio Giuditto Brozzetti), one of the last remaining hand-weaving workshops in Italy. This hidden jewel is housed in a 13th century church where St. Francis and his disciples once lived and prayed. Founded in 1921 by Giuditto Brozzetti, one of the most important female entrepreneurs in Italy, the museum is dedicated to the history and preservation of traditional Umbrian hand weaving techniques. Brozzetti's innovative goal was to create a place where the local women could exhibit their weaving skills with the creation and sale of their own designs. She invited these women to gather in a workshop-like setting rather than producing their textiles at home on manual looms. Here they could use new technology to improve their craft. By using the original antique wooden jacquard looms and employing the same traditional techniques from a century ago, Brozzetti honored the ancient ways and kept the patterns alive.

The museum pays homage to an ancient craft that has been sustained over the centuries by generations of talented, independent entrepreneurial women. We'll meet Marta Cucchia, a fourth-generation master weaver and the proprietor of Il Museo-Laboratorio Giuditto Brozzetti. These weaving traditions have been handed down through four female generations. The patterns they produce are taken from motifs from Etruscan pottery, paintings and ancient tombs and are reminiscent of medieval and Renaissance textile traditions, especially of the Umbria region.

From here we head to the postcard-perfect town of Assisi. Although it has become a bit touristy and highly visited, no trip to Italy would be complete without seeing the site that has drawn pilgrims since the 13th century. Named after Saint Francis of Assisi, one of the two patron saints of Italy, the entire town is designated as a UNESCO World Heritage Site due to the significance of its art and historically significant buildings. It is one of the best-preserved medieval towns in all the world. We'll enjoy a guided tour of the main sites and then have time wander on your own. We return to our castle in the hills in the late afternoon. Dinner is on your own tonight. Overnight at Castello Monterone. (B)

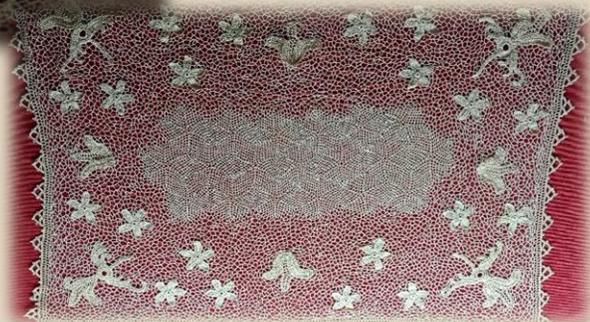

Monday, May 2 A Lake, Lace and Alpacas / To Tuscany

This morning, we travel to Maridiana Alpaca Farm, the first farm in Italy to breed a large number of alpaca and 60 angora goats for fiber production. Sadly, many in their herd that roamed the rolling hills of the 100-acre Umbrian farm were decimated by wolves last year, but they still have 12 alpaca at the farm. Gianni Berna and Maridiana have more than 15 years of experience managing alpaca. Their pilot program on fiber production has been designated as a “demonstration breeding farm” with the goal of extending the concept to rural areas that can benefit from raising alpaca. Gianni will give us a tour of the property with a focus on their fiber production.

We carry on in Umbria to Lago Trasimeno to board a ferry boat and travel across the lake to visit Isola Maggiore and its Museum of Tulle di Panicale (Museum of Lace). The remote island, with a population of only 16 residents, is called the “Secret Irish Island in the Heart of Italy.” Here Irish lace making is a proud tradition where the women sit on the main street making lace. The little museum features incredible examples of lacework and crochet made on the island and explains how the role of lace improved the island’s economy. We can walk to the Church of St. Michael whose original building dates to the 12th century. There are many frescoes adorning the wall that date from the later 15th century. The walk provides magnificent views of the lake and surrounding countryside. A delicious lakeside lunch awaits us (cost not included) before we head back to the mainland and carry on with our adventure.

From the lake, we continue to travel north and west into the vine-laced hills of rural Tuscany. This is a landscape of rolling green hills, perfectly planted avenues of cypress trees, sun-kissed vineyards and medieval and Renaissance hill towns. We'll meander through this magical realm making a few interesting stops along the way including a fabulous lunch overlooking the vineyards. Our destination and accommodations for the next five nights are Terre di Nano, a 19th century country estate nestled between the historic hill towns of Montepulciano and Montalcino on over 50 hectares of land. Located in the Val d'Orcia area, we are surrounded by Terre di Nano's vineyards and olive groves, from which they make their own wine and oil, all the while enjoying panoramic vistas of seemingly endless open space dotted with nearby hill towns of Montepulciano, Pienza and the village of Monticchiello perfectly perched in the distance. The atmosphere at Terre de Nano is casual, warm and friendly with a rare rustic beauty of its own. Our lodgings are an authentic mixture of rooms and apartments in the Villa and independent houses, all featuring raised wood beam or arched ceilings, antique terracotta flooring, rustic refined furnishings, and spectacular views over the valleys. The residence includes a swimming pool overlooking the countryside and Mount Amiata. The village of Monticchiello di Pienza is a 10-minute drive away. At Terre di Nano, we can truly slow down, unwind and experience the infamous dolce vita of Tuscany with delicious food, spectacular scenery and warm hosts. Tonight, we will enjoy a group dinner prepared by Chef Giorgio in the Villa's quaint dining room. Overnight at Terre di Nano. (B,D)

Tuesday - Saturday, May 3 - 7 Plein Air Tapestry Weaving Workshop and Hill Town Visits, Wine and Olive Oil Tasting & More...

We will spend these days weaving a tapestry of the beautiful scenery and colors of Bella Toscana! Dazzled by the mosaic of our magnificent surroundings, we'll each create a small tapestry woven on frame looms under the mentorship of one of our favorite weavers in all the world, Louise Martin.

We'll also spend two days, as a group, to visit the nearby UNESCO medieval hill towns of Montepulciano, Montalcino & Pienza with optional olive oil and wine tastings and delicious cuisine and history. All the while we savor the incredible valley views of the Val di Chiana and Val d'Orcia, showcasing arguably the absolute best of Tuscan scenery.

For the non-weavers in the group, you may wish to take a day trip to Sienna, take a cooking class at Terre di Nano or one of the nearby towns, visit historic Montalcino to taste it's amazing Brunello wines, or just relax and soak in the natural beauty and peace of our haven. (Cost of extra activities not included.) Overnight at Terre di Nano. (B daily, some lunches and 2 dinners).

Sunday, May 8 To Florence Via Chianti

We travel today north through the landscape of Chianti meandering through a landscape of rolling green hills, perfectly planted avenues of cypress trees, sun-kissed vineyards and medieval and Renaissance hill towns. We'll tarry through this magical realm making a few interesting stops along the way including a fabulous lunch overlooking the vineyards before arriving in Florence and some wine tasting.

Firenze... where does one begin? It is certainly one of the must-see places in the world. No one describes it quite as well as the Lonely Planet: "Towers and palaces evoke a thousand tales of its medieval past; designer boutiques and artisan workshops pearl its streets; and the local drinking and dining scene is second to none. Cradle of the Renaissance and home of Machiavelli, Michelangelo and the Medici, Florence is magnetic, romantic and brilliantly absorbing." Textile lovers flock to Florence to see the weaving, embroidery, silk, trims and tassels that played a large part of the city's economic and cultural history.

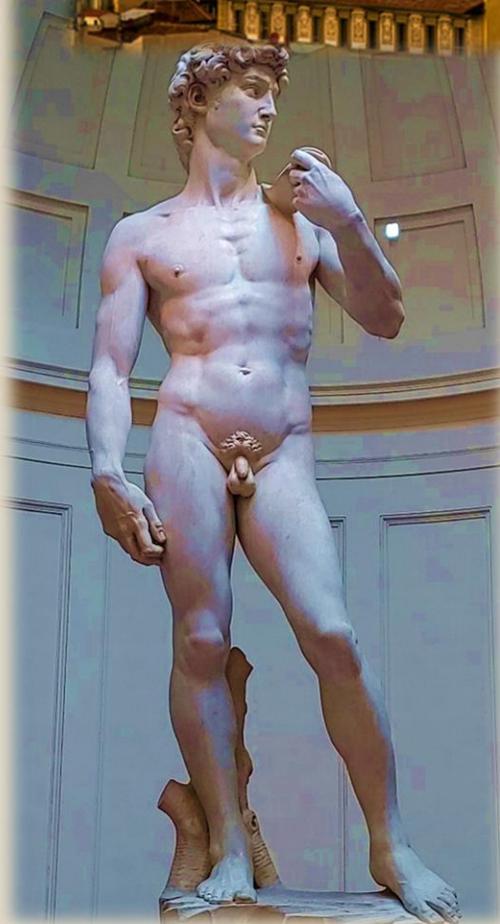

We will spend three nights here immersed in the city's historic charm at a charming 14th century B&B. In Piazza della Signoria is named by Fodor's Travel as one of their "Top Picks" for accommodations. Situated in a stellar location, our hotel overlooks the scenic and historic square, Piazza della Signoria, which has remained the main civic center of Florence since time immemorial. This area of Florence is a warren of narrow, atmospheric lanes and Piazza della Signoria, considered the most striking square in Florence, is home to the infamous Neptune Fountain and 14th century Loggia dei Lanzi with its many famous statues. It was also here where the original Bonfire of the Vanities took place in 1497. Rick Steves describes our accommodations here as

"peaceful, refined and homey." The boutique hotel is a charming place for those who love Florentine art, elegance and lifestyle. This charming, historical building, located at northeast corner of Piazza della Signoria, was built at the end of the 14th century. When the owners began the restoration work, they discovered frescoes from the 15th and 18th centuries that make one feel as if they are in a museum. The rooms are in Renaissance style, each one different, decorated with antique furniture. Spacious and bright, the rooms have the name of illustrious Florentine personalities and bear the traces of them. We will have the entire ancient place to ourselves. Tonight, you have the option of dining at the hotel with a meal prepared especially for our group by the chef (cost not included). Overnight at Boutique Hotel in Piazza della Signoria. (B)

Exploring Florence

Home of the Medici and the Birthplace of the Modern World

Today we will enjoy a half day tour of Florence and its many wonders. UNESCO describes Florence as having “the highest concentration of universally renowned works of art in the world.” We continue our exploration of the importance of silk in Italy’s textile history. The art of silk weaving flourished in Florence in the 14th century and reached its peak production during the heir of the Medici. It is said that the “streets were draped in precious tapestries.” The afternoon is at your leisure to explore on your own the many museums filled with world-class art and history. You wish to visit on your own an ancient silk mill that still uses its original looms from the 18th century. The Antico Setificio Fiorentino, was founded in 1786 by some of the noble families of Florence and with subsequent support provided by the grand duke Pietro Leopoldo di Lorena who donated two looms. The patterns woven here date back to the Renaissance. Of particular interest is its famous warping machine based on a design by Leonardo da Vinci. Overnight at hotel in Florence. (B)

Firenze and Textiles

We enjoy another guided half day tour of Florence again this morning as there is simply so much to see and learn. In the afternoon, we'll travel outside of the city to visit the Museo Del Tessuto (Textile Museum) in nearby Prato. A cultural institution housed in an archeological monument to the textile industry, the museum was founded to promote the study, enhancement and promotion of ancient and contemporary textiles. Its rich history dates back to the Middle Ages with records prior to 1326 indicating the existence of a fulling mill on the site. Its modern history begins in 1863 when it became the home to the Hydraulic Mill Company dedicated to fabric cropping and shearing. Later it evolved into a comprehensive textile finishing facility. Today the history of weaving is showcased with an impressive collection of 6,000 textiles from Italy, Europe and all the world dating from the early Christian era to the present. The museum's collection of Italian Renaissance textiles is considered one of the most important in the world. Overnight in Florence. (B)

Como, “The City of Silks”

Today we travel to the city of Como where its silk is legendary. After China and Japan, Como is the world’s third largest producer of silk and has a glorious past in the textile industry. It was Italy’s most important export in the 18th and 19th centuries. The industry suffered much adversity including an epidemic that wiped out the Italian silk-moth and an economic crash in 1855. Today, Como is still the most important producer of silk products. We will visit Como’s Silk Museum which opened in 1990 and is dedicated to preserving the rich history of the silk industry in Como. Located in the palazzo that houses the prestigious School of Textiles, we will learn about the entire process of silk making in all its stages. Beginning with the silkworms, then the spinning and dyeing process, the weaving and printing techniques and finally the finished products. It will be a journey through the incredible world of silk and the magic of an utterly unique fabric.

We’ll also visit Mantero Seta with its historic samples archive. We even must wear security badges to enter! It contains over ten thousand volumes dating back to 1820. In their shop, we can buy scarves, ties and other textiles at a fraction of the costs elsewhere.

The town of Como is interesting in and of itself with 12-century city walls, a magnificent Duomo and Basilica and a delightful historic center. We’ll investigate its magic returning in the evening to charming Bellagio. Overnight at hotel in Bellagio. (B)
