Family Resource Network

Working together for area families

Our Mission

...is to create a network of advocates committed to developing grassroots movements to mobilize, engage, and empower the community for positive change.

What is a Family Resource Network?

Family Resource Networks have existed in the state of West Virginia since the early 1990s. They can have a wide scope of work that varies based on what the community needs.

FRNs are local coalitions of people working to better meet the needs and improve services for children and families in their communities.

Partnering with community members and public and private organizations, the FRN can develop innovative projects and provide needed resources for their local areas.

Our Services

- Caregiver Education
- Community Resource Manual
- Disabilities Support Group
- Family Skill-Building
- Non-Perishable Food, Hygiene, Clothing, & Baby Item Pantry
