Humanistic Sand Tray For Play Therapy

Offered by
Linda Klein, LPC, RPT-S

September 29, 2023
Centennial, CO

Humanistic Sand Tray for Play Therapy

Sandtray therapy can delve deeply into the unconscious; bringing that which is hidden to life. The play therapist is the witness to and the companion in exploring the client's innermost world through a non-verbal medium. It can be used as an adjunct to play therapy or a modality all of its own. It can be used with diverse populations and for children as well as adults, couples and groups.

Participants will have the hands-on experience of constructing their own Sandtray world as well as aid others in having insight into their world. Exploring metaphoric language and symbolism will help clinicians as they explore the rich world of sand tray. This training will include lecture, videos, practice exercises as well as working in the sand tray.

Learning Objectives: Participants will:

1. Distinguish 3 differences between Sandtray and Sandplay.
2. Explore Humanistic approaches to integrate sand tray into Play Therapy.
3. Prepare a Sandtray area for Play Therapy including 7 categories of selection of miniatures and the science behind their arrangement.
4. Examine metaphors and symbolism in pictures and videos of children's sand trays created during play therapy sessions.
5. Practice a 4-step protocol for conducting a Play Therapy Sandtray session.

6. Describe 6 directed techniques to use in sand during Play Therapy sessions.
7. Write a document for a Sandtray Play Therapy session.
